

Language Identification Organizer

Listen closely and check off each phrase as you hear it.

- To play deadline, you need a phone, lots of pencils, pens, papers scattered about.
- Her teacher was surprised that I was surprised that Langston Hughes' work was in a bilingual elementary school textbook.
- in 1937, he was a correspondent for Baltimore's Afro-America newspaper during the Spanish Civil War
- Sort of conventional belief, you know?
- And maybe that's why I was elected the class poet.
- did you know his mother recited classical poetry at home?
- He liked hot weather, goat's milk, jazz, and lyrical lines.
- I saw this great, muddy river flowing down toward the heart of the south.
- He translated the work of other poets from the French, and Charlotte, from the Spanish.
- He made finding poetry everywhere seem deceptively simple.